

ENG-112
PAST PAPER 2019
SOLVED BY
MUHAMMAD BILAL RIAZ

QUESTION NO# .01

ANS:

In Martin Amis' article "Emergency Landing" he talks about a scary experience when his airplane had to make an emergency landing. Amis is known for his special way of writing, where he uses clever and funny words. In the article, he describes the tense of situation with a mix of seriousness and humor. Amis shares how he felt scared and unsure during the emergency, and he tells the story in a way that lets readers see both the technical details of the landing and his own thoughts and feelings. His writing style is like a skilled storyteller, using words that paint a clear picture of the events. The article shows how Amis, even in a tough situation, can use language in a smart and entertaining way. It's not just about the airplane trouble; it's also about how he thinks and feels in that moment. Amis's writing gives readers a look into his mind and emotions, making the story both gripping and thought-provoking.

Question NO# .02

ANS:

Factory farming is depicted as work in "Brave New Farm" has profound effect on animals' health. The intense confinement and overcrowded conditions in these facilities contribute to elevated stress level among animals, making them more susceptible to diseases. The close quarters facilitate the rapid spread of infections fostering an environment where bacteria can proliferate unchecked. The battle to control bacteria build-up in factory farms is a critical concern. Overuse of antibiotics in these settings to prevent and treat diseases leads to the emergence of antibiotic-resistant strains of bacteria. This poses a dual threat - compromised animal health and the potential for antibiotic-resistant bacteria to transfer to humans, jeopardizing public health. In "Brave New Farm," the relentless pursuit of efficiency often results in compromised animal welfare and health. The drive to maximize production can lead to practices that disregard the well-being of the animals and contribute to the spread of diseases. Addressing these challenges requires a reevaluation of the industrial farming model to prioritize animal welfare and implement sustainable practices that mitigate the risks of bacterial contamination and antibiotic resistance.

QUESTION NO# .03

ANS:

Improving reading for school can be hard, but there are ways to make it easier. First, try to understand what you're reading by asking questions and summarizing the main ideas. Use tools like dictionaries to learn new words. Manage your time well. Set aside specific times for reading and break your tasks into smaller parts. Focus on what's important and don't try to do too much at once. Avoid distractions so you can concentrate better. If you're not interested in what you're reading, it can be tough. Find topics that you like to make reading more fun. Don't be afraid to ask for help from friends, teachers, or tutors to feel more confident. Lastly, talk about what you read with others. This can help you understand different points of view. By working on understanding, time management, interest, and talking about what you read, you can get better at reading for school.

QUESTION NO# .04

ANS:

Introduction To Paragraph Writing

A paragraph is a group of sentences that share a common idea. It usually starts with a topic sentence that introduces the main idea. The following sentences provide details and examples to support that idea. A good paragraph is clear, focused, and easy to read. It should stay on one topic and not mix different ideas. Finally, a concluding sentence often wraps up the paragraph by summarizing the main point or providing a transition to the next paragraph.

Structure Of Paragraph

- Topic Sentence:

Begin with a sentence that introduces the main idea of the paragraph

- Supporting Sentences:

Include sentences that provide evidence, examples, or details to support the main idea.

- Explanation:

Add explanations to clarify how the supporting sentences relate to the main idea.

- Concluding Sentence:

End with a sentence that summarizes the main idea or provides a transition to the next paragraph.

Essential Elements to Write a Good Paragraph

Four elements are essential for a good paragraph. These are following.

- i) Unity                      ii) Order
- ii) Coherence              iv) Completeness

Unity:

Unity in a paragraph means that all the sentences in the paragraph are focused on a single idea or topic. Every sentence should directly relate to the main point, ensuring that the paragraph doesn't stray from its purpose.

Order:

Order refers to the logical arrangement of ideas or sentences within a paragraph. This can be chronological (time-based), spatial (space-based), or logical (based on importance or sequence).

Coherence:

Coherence ensures that the sentences in a paragraph flow smoothly from one to the next. This can be achieved through the use of transitions, repetition of key terms, and consistent point of view. A coherent paragraph is easy to read and understand.

Completeness:

Completeness in a paragraph means that the main idea is fully developed and explained, leaving no questions in the reader's mind. The paragraph should contain enough information and examples to make the point clear.

Question No#.05

A) Money Devaluation and Economy

Money devaluation occurs when a country's currency loses value relative to other currencies. This often happens due to inflation, where the purchasing power of money declines, leading to higher prices for goods and services. Devaluation can be intentional, aimed at making exports cheaper and more competitive internationally, but it also makes imports more expensive, which can fuel further inflation. While devaluation can boost short-term economic growth by encouraging exports, it can also harm the economy by increasing the cost of imported goods, leading to a rise in the cost of living. Over time, this can reduce consumer confidence, limit investment, and potentially lead to economic instability if not managed carefully. Ultimately, the effects of devaluation depend on how it's managed and the broader economic context.

B) Sports And Education

Sports and education are closely intertwined, each enhancing the other in various ways. Engaging in sports provides students with valuable life skills such as teamwork, discipline, and time management, which are also essential for academic success. Physical activity promotes mental well-being, improving concentration, memory, and overall cognitive function, which can lead to better academic performance. Additionally, sports teach resilience and perseverance, helping students develop a growth mindset that benefits their educational journey. On the other hand, education provides the knowledge and critical thinking skills necessary to understand and excel in sports, including strategic planning, understanding of rules, and health management. Together, sports and education create a balanced, well-rounded development, preparing individuals for success in all aspects of life.

C) Causes of price-hike

Price hikes, or inflation, can be caused by several factors. One major cause is demand-pull inflation, where high demand for goods and services exceeds supply, driving prices up. Cost-push inflation is another factor, occurring when the cost of production rises, such as increases in wages, raw materials, or energy prices, which businesses pass on to consumers. Exchange rate fluctuations can also lead to price hikes, especially in countries reliant on imports; a weaker currency makes imported goods more expensive. Additionally, government policies, such as increased taxes or reduced subsidies, can raise prices. Supply chain disruptions, whether due to natural disasters, geopolitical tensions, or pandemics, can limit the availability of goods, further contributing to price increases. All these factors combine to create an environment where prices steadily rise.